Notes: Students are strongly encouranged to take more upper level anthropology courses beyond the requirements of the major, including field and laboratory methods category courses. Students are also urged to take a foreign language for their general education culture and creativity requirement and STA 205 for their general education mathmatics requirement. Note, two of the field methods courses (archaeological and ethnographic field schools) are only taught during the summer * Usually, anthropology majors us ANT 100 or ANT 100H to satisfy their Global Viewpoints General Education Requirement.

* Usually, anthropology majors us ANT 100 or ANT 100H to satisfy their Global Viewpoints General Education Requirement. Students may only use one anthropology course to satisfy the Self and Society requirements of General Education. Students may use ANT 110 to satisfy Self and Society: Individual & Society and then take two non-anthropology courses to meet the remain course in Self and Society: Individual & Society and the other in Self and Society: Cultural Pluralism OR use ANT 201, 230, 231, 245, or 270 to satisfy Self and Society: Cultural Pluralism and then take to additional non-anthropology courses to meet the Self and Society: Individual & Society requirements
